

FIRST WEEK IN MAY IS DESIGNATED AS CHINA FAMINE WEEK

Proclamation of Gov. Blaine
Asks Badgers to Help Swell
Relief Fund

MADISON, Wis.—Apr. 20.—People of Wisconsin are appealed to by Governor John J. Blaine to set aside the week of May 1 to 8 as "China Famine Week," a period for special appeal and for concerted action in making the relief fund campaign a success.

The governor asks that the people contribute liberally, in order that Wisconsin may do its share. This proclamation follows:

For months one of the most serious famines in history has ravaged the northern provinces of China where several years of crop failures have left a large population absolutely destitute. Children are being sold into slavery to assure their safety from starvation and to prolong the lives of their families. Thousands have already perished.

There are still five million people, almost twice the entire population of the state of Wisconsin, absolutely dependent upon contributions from America. America is the only country that can possibly give relief. Prompt action by the people of this country can save a large proportion of the five million who otherwise face certain death before the next harvest. Three dollars will save a life until the next harvest; fifteen dollars will save a family; other states are already engaged in raising funds for this relief work. Wisconsin can and I believe will do its share.

Money raised in America will be cable to an all-American committee in Peking, of which United States Minister Charles R. Crane is chairman. By whom this money will be expended in Manchuria for food supplies which can then be hastened to the relief of this destitute people.

Therefore, I, John J. Blaine, Governor of the State of Wisconsin, do hereby request and urge that the people of our state contribute as liberally as their resources will permit to the China Famine Relief Fund. It is suggested that the week of May 1 to May 8 be set aside as a period for a special appeal and for concerted action in making the undertaking a success, and I therefore appeal to the people to make such period "China Famine Week" for such purpose.

JOHN J. BLAINE,
Governor.

PROSPECTOR BRINGS BODY OF PAL BACK TO CIVILIZATION

PORT ARTHUR, Ont.—An eleven day journey by canoe, toboggan and dog team through the wilds of Northern Ontario to bring back to civilization the body of W. E. Brown, an American gold prospector, ended Wednesday when T. Barker, Brown's companion and brother-in-law, reached this place.

The body, which had been hauled and carried several hundred miles, was encased in several thicknesses of tarpaulin and strapped to a board. It will be taken by train to Plainville, Mich., for burial.

Brown died of pneumonia, April 6, in a shack near Clearwater Lake, 150 miles north of Sioux Lookout, the nearest settlement.

Barker started the journey alone. After several days' journeying with the body, he came across an Indian who accompanied him here.

PERMISSION FROM SOVIET NECESSARY FOR DEPORTATIONS

Russia Must Consent to Return of Undesirables from U. S.
Says Statement

RIGA.—By The Associated Press.—The United States no longer will be able to deport its undesirable or send its willing Russian residents to Soviet Russia without previous negotiations and the consent of the Soviet government in each individual case, under the provisions of a Soviet decision made public through a note to the Latvian government.

The note says the Soviet authorities will not leave any transit visas granted by Latvian representatives abroad for emigrants or deportees bound for Russia, unless they also have Russian visas.

During the last few months Americanized Russians among the immigrants and deportees entering Russia have caused much difficulty there and in many instances are said to have been leading factors in revolts. In addition many of them have been anarchists, whom the Soviet authorities also are unwilling to admit.

PERRY BILL WOULD BAR POOR STUDENTS FROM U SAYS BIRGE

President Opposes Bill Reported
Out for Passage in the Assembly

MADISON, Wis.—The Perry bill, intended to increase the tuition of out of state students at the University of Wisconsin to $300 for the school year, and increasing the tuition of resident students to $124, was reported out of the assembly state affairs committee Thursday morning for passage.

Strong opposition was expressed to the committee yesterday by President Birge of the university, who said that the legislature in passing such a measure would be making a radical departure from the tradition of its great educational institution and from that of the state.

The pointed out that a million of state would exclude most of the desirable out of state students, allowing only those of wealth to take advantage of the university. The committee during the hearing showed itself to be set in its determination that only state students should be allowed to take advantage of the state university.

La Crosse Folks at University

The big event at the University of Wisconsin this week is the university Exposition which will hold sway on the campus on Thursday Friday and Saturday. Scores of students including many from La Crosse cut their spring vacations short by several days in order to get back to Madison and get things in shape for the big exposition which will show all phases of university work.

"Watch Wisconsin Work" is the slogan adopted by William Pierce, who is general chairman in charge of the Exposition.

The exhibit of university and Wisconsin graduate talent in the several fields will be the first held since 1915 when the event made a big hit. Wisconsin is the only large university in the country to attempt a similar display of its work.

Work of every department in the institution will be shown on the several floors and annex of the university armory. Each college on the campus appointed its own committees which are vying with one another in an effort to put on an elaborate display as possible.

Several La Crosse men are represented on the committees taking charge of the work for the college of engineering and the college of commerce.

Work of graduates being gathered shows that some of the great engineering feats of the last decade and copy of some of the largest national advertising campaigns now being run are the work of Wisconsin graduates.

The work of many of the departments will be a revelation to some people not acquainted with university. Thousands of people, especially high school students, from all parts of the state and many from other states will be in Madison this week-end for the big event.

The aim of the university in putting on the Exposition is two-fold. It is the purpose of the authorities to present the work of the various colleges in an effort to help them in choosing the work they intend to take up at college. The second purpose is to give the people of the state an idea of the useful things the university is accomplishing with state funds.

Among scores of other useful inventions and works on exhibit will be the submarine detector invented by a Wisconsin man, a device which practically saved the Allies from the German submarine attacks during the war. Professor Max Mason of the university faculty is the inventor of the instrument which is now on all navy ships and many engaged in commercial traffic.

Many cities in the state are planning on sending special trains of students to Madison for the Exposition this week-end.

On Monday and Tuesday scores of La Crosse students at the university returned to Madison to resume their studies which will continue practically uninterrupted for the rest of the semester.

Members of the senior class planning on fishing up their work in June will be required to spend most of the remaining school weeks at work on these theses in the various hill courses.

Among the La Crosse students who returned to Madison after spending the recess in La Crosse were John Dickens, Caroline Schweizer, Gretchen Schweizer, Oscar Baum, Walter Baum, Melvin Pierce, Roger Luck, Joe Liseovec, Earl Hirschheimer, Ralph Schlachbach, George Runge, Mary Farnham, Leona Yerby, Ruth Knudsen, Everett Yerby, Albert Meinert, Harold Crider and Isabel Kroner.

ROCKFORD, Ill.—President P. J. Healy of the Chicago Grain Producers company announced that ex-service men only would be employed during construction of a new alcohol distillery here.

Logic and Lodge

THE long pending Colombian treaty, whereby the United States gives the Central American country $25,000,000 as indemnity for the part this country played in the revolution which preceded our acquisition of the Panama Canal zone, has been approved by the senate. Senator Lenroot and Senator Johnson were fighting the treaty, largely, apparently, because it is a tacit admission on the part of the United States that Theodore Roosevelt, as president, used the might of the United States to secure the canal zone. Yet Mr. Roosevelt, himself, admitted that he did just that. In the Chautauqua speech, after he had left the presidency, he said "I took Panama", and a review of the record of how it was done shows that American warships forced the Colombian military to stand idle while an American-financed revolutionary party seized the isthmus and set up in independence. And immediately President Roosevelt recognized the new country.

Against this it is probably true that Colombia was trying to hold up this country in the price demanded for the canal zone, and that the new republic of Panama sold the isthmus to the United States at a greatly reduced figure. So that there was some practical vindication for President Roosevelt's action and policy, even if, considered as to means rather than ends, it was not of irreproachable morality.

The treaty passed on Wednesday gives Colombia $25,000,000 to close the incident. It was fought, when negotiated and introduced by the Wilson administration, by Senator Lodge. This time Lodge was for it. His change of heart, he says, is due to the elimination of a clause in the treaty which was virtually a confession of American high-handedness in the Panama affair. But Mr. Lodge can hardly have persuaded himself that the elimination of a form of words can change the record or make the treaty anything else than an act of restitution which is in itself a confession. Except as restitution there is no imaginable reason for the payment of twenty-five millions to Colombia.

But there is no use in being too hard on Mr. Lodge. He is constrained to his inconsistency by inexorable logic which as chairman of the foreign relations committee he cannot avoid as can, for instance, Senator Lenroot and Senator Johnson. Upon him is the responsibility for success in American foreign policy—upon him and his party's leader, President Harding. The fact of the matter is that the Panama affair was not the wholly successful coup it seemed to be. We got the canal zone cheap, but in the way we did it we also got the distrust and suspicion of practically the whole of Latin America, hating Brazil, perhaps. President Harding and Senator Lodge feel, as Wilson and Bryan and Lansing felt, the necessity of maintaining our position as the trusted friend and leader of the American hemisphere, if for no other reason than the sanctity of the Monroe Doctrine. Regardless of his respect for the memory of Roosevelt, Mr. Lodge had to insist on the Colombian treaty as the necessary preliminary to a restoration of the vitality of the Pan-American idea.

Highways

IN his message President Harding insists that federal aid for highways must be conditioned somewhat upon uniformity, and upon the adoption of maintenance programs by the states receiving federal money.

Possibly the president overlooked the fact that the federal aid law now existing makes the requirement for maintenance which he urges.

The problem of uniformity is probably not one which can be solved by a president's message. For instance, Wisconsin has been forced from concrete to gravel by economic considerations. Doubtless were Uncle Sam to specify concrete, the cement trust would make us pay for platinum.

In his message Governor Blaine proposed to turn to road making to the full extent of appropriations now running from twenty to thirty millions. This plan was not pressed in its entirety because material men wanted too much. The state highway department abandoned much of its concrete program and proposed gravel, but failure thus far to secure freight rate concessions has proved a handicap. Thus our road program is partially blocked at a time when unemployment makes unusual demands and the requirements of transportation urge the utmost speed in highway construction.

However, Wisconsin is not at a complete standstill. In the matter of concrete roads for 1921 Wisconsin is in second place in the United States, with 157 miles of new road authorized, as against 166 authorized by New York. With our hold-over contracts concrete highway in Wisconsin will pass 210 miles, and may reach 250. In addition the state's program includes some 1,350 miles of gravel road, and about 900 of dirt road, making a grand total of around 2,500 miles of highway construction counted upon for 1921.

And thus, while we may not forge ahead with the speed and wholesale scope of which many of us dreamed in solving the highway problem, we are at least "making haste slowly." Doubtless it will come to be regarded as sound public policy to use such road materials as we can afford rather than give up all for uniformity.

However, uniformity in permanent roads is highly to be desired, and maintenance programs are absolutely essential. Perhaps we shall come to both in due time, and the president's endorsement should give direction to the road movement.

If Not Plague, Then Famine

DISPATCHES from China tell of the forcible cutting off of the queens of Chinese as a measure of sanitation in the fight against typhus, which is propagated through the bites of lice.

But the orthodox Chinese believes that if he dies without his queue his soul will be lost. As between living in China with the fear of eternal perdition, and dying now of typhus, good Christians can see that there is much to be said for the Chinaman who prefers queue, death and salvation.

There is still another argument against the stamping out of typhus which appeals to certain Chinese minds. Years ago an American scientist traveling in the interior of the Flowery Kingdom found a city in which bubonic plague was raging. He called on the mandarin who governed the place and explained to him the cause of the spread of this disease—through the bites of fleas infesting rats.

The mandarin had never heard of this, but he was an intelligent man, and was keenly interested. "Yes," said he, after all his questions had been answered, "I can see that what you say is true. It agrees with the facts."

"Give me the men and the authority, and I will stamp out this dreadful plague," said the American. The mandarin suddenly lost interest. "Why should we go to all that trouble, and expense?" he inquired. "There are too many people!"

And there are too many people in China. They press against subsistence always. There are some areas of land in China which could be reclaimed and made to grow food; but the birth-rate would fill them almost before they could be reclaimed.

What China needs is a lower birth-rate. Until she has it something will always kill off the population until it can live off the country. If not typhus or plague, then starvation.

The La Crosse Manufacturers' and Jobbers' club will attempt to bring about a readjustment in freight rates in and out of La Crosse, through the agency of the Western Freight Traffic Association of St. Paul. The club holds that one reason for the difficulty of securing manufacturing plants for this city has been existing inequities in freight rates. To analyze the schedules requires information not enjoyed by any local men or concerns. The St. Paul institution is the greatest specialist in the world in this line and it is thought their investigations will bring good results for the club.

A Man For the Ages

BY Irving Bacheller

(Copyright 1919 by Irving Bacheller)

"Poor Jack has caught the plague. He has invested in land. Thinks it will make him rich. He's in poor health, too—kidney trouble—and then has a baby with all the rest—a beautiful boy. I went upstairs and saw him asleep in his cradle. Looks like her. Hair as yellow as gold, light complexion, blue eyes, handsome as a picture."

That night in the office of the city hotel they found Mr. Lionel Davis in the midst of a group of excited speculators. In some way he had got across the prairie and was selling his land and accepting every offer on the plea that he was going into the grain business in St. Louis and had to leave Chicago next day. Samson and Harry watched him while he expressed the acts of auctioneer in cleaning his state. Diamonds and gold watches were taken and many thousands of dollars in bank bills and coin came into his hands. He closed the market with bargains. The buyers began to back off. They were like hungry dogs laboring with a difficult problem of satisfaction. Mr. Davis closed his carpet bag and left.

"It was a kind of horse stealin'," said Samson as they were going to bed. "He got news down there on the main road by pony express on his way to St. Louis. 'Til he'd been a panic in the east. He's awake and the others are still dreamin'."

CHAPTER XIX

Wherein is One of the Many Private Panics Which Followed the Bursting of the Bubble of Speculation.

Samson and Harry saw the bursting of the great bubble of '37. Late that night disaster, bathos and thousand logged, crept into the little city. It came on a steamer from the east and hastened from homes to homes, from tavern to tavern. It bit as it traveled. Great banks had suspended payment; New York had suffered a panic; many large business enterprises in the east had failed; certain agents for the bonds of Illinois had absconded with the state's money; in the big cities there had been an ominous closing of doors and turning of locks; a great army of men were out of employment. These of sound judgment in Chicago knew that all the grand schemes of the speculators and speculators of Illinois were as the vision of an ended dream. The local banks did not open their doors next day. The little city was in a frenzy of excitement. The streets were filled with a shouting, half crazed throng. New fortunes had shrunk to nothing and less than nothing in a night. Lots in the city were offered for a title of what their market value had been. Davis had known that the storm would arrive with the first steamer and in the slough of business had put on a life-preserver. Samson knew that the time to buy was when everyone wanted to sell. He wore a belt with some two thousand dollars of gold tucked away in its pockets. He bought two corner lots for himself in the city and two acres for Mrs. Lukins on the prairie half a mile from town. They got their deeds and went to the Keisos to bid them good-by.

"Is there anything I can do for you?" Samson asked.

"Just give us a friendly thought now and then," said Kelson.

"You can have my horse or my wallet or the strength of my two hands."

"I have heard you called a damned Yankee, but I can think of no greater blessing than to be damned in a like manner," Kelson answered. "Keep your harness for those who need it more, good friend."

After these hearty farewells Samson and Harry set out for their home. They were not again to see the gentle face and hear the pleasant talk of Jack Kelson. He had once said, in the presence of the writer, that it is well to remember, always, that things can not go on with us as they are. Changes will come—slowly and quite according to our calculations or so swiftly and unexpectedly that they fill us with confusion. Learned and wise in the weighty problems of humanity he had little prudence in regarding the affairs of his own family.

Kelson had put every dollar he had and some that he hoped to have into land. Him, who had been teaching in one of the schools, had invested all her savings in a dream city on the shore of an unconstructed canal.

Like many who had had no experience with such phenomena they underestimated the seriousness of the panic. They thought that in a week or so, its effect would pass and that things would then resume their triumphant march toward its high destiny. Not even Samson Trolley had a correct notion of the slowness of Time.

The effect of the panic paralyzed the city. Men whose "red dog money" was in every one's pocket closed their shops and ran away. The wild adventurers cleared out. Their character may be judged by the words of one of them reported by the editor of The Democrat.

"I failed for a hundred thousand dollars and could have failed for a million if Jackson had kept his hands off."

Hard times hung like a cloud over the city. Its population suffered some diminishment in the next two years in spite of its position on the main highway of trade. Dream cities, canals and railroads built without hands became a part of the poetry of America. Indeed they had come of the prophetic vision and were therefore entitled to respect in spite of the fact that they had been snatched and polluted by speculators.

Value of Change-of-Pace Ball

By Grover Cleveland Alexander
Star of National League Pitchers
Every pitcher who would be a star ought to have a "change-of-pace ball." Without it his repertoire is incomplete. I really think the change-of-pace ball is almost as valuable to the pitcher as his curve or fast ball.

I find that my change-of-pace ball is most successful when I make it low. By keeping it down the batter invariably hits it on top. If it is kept high he has a pretty good chance to time it and lace it for a base hit.

In using a change-of-pace ball I do not figure that it will get past the batter or strike him out, but I do bank on getting him off his stride. Usually he is set for a swift one, and by handing him a change-of-pace ball instead he is caught off stride, and consequently does not get a good swing. He either drives the ball into the ground or it pops up. If you already have a curve, a fast and a slow ball, and then add a good change-of-pace ball, you will be able to keep the batters guessing for all they are worth. They will not know what is coming next and consequently will be watching your every movement.

The change-of-pace ball is of the most value when the opposing side succeeds in timing your fast and curve balls.

I practiced mine for a season before I used it in a game. The first one I threw was driven against the fence, but that did not discourage me in the least. Few have hit the same way since.

The Art of Conversation

By Dr. William E. Barton
In a recent novel, severely criticizing American village life, the following paragraph is included in a description of one of the social events of the town which is the scene of the story:

"She discovered that conversation did not exist in that town. Even at this affair, which brought out the young smart set, the hunting squirrel, the respectable intellectual set, and the solid financial set, they sat up with gaiety as with a corpse."

The evening produced five "stunts" by as many members of the village. The first was a recitation of "An Old Sweetheart of Mine," followed by an encore in the shape of "a peculiarly optimistic poem regarding the value of smiles." The others were, one Irish, one Jewish, one juvenile, and the last a parody on Mark Antony's funeral oration.

The succeeding functions of the season caused the heroine, who was new to the village, to hear "An Old Sweetheart of Mine" nine times, one of the others seven times, and each of the others twice. But "when the stunts were finished, the party instantly sank back into coma."

The town did not have its jokes, even; it had its one joke, which varied ever so little to fit the slight changes which the monotony of life made necessary.

This absence of intelligent conversation is much to be deplored. It is one reason why people resort to the kind of entertainment in vague at social functions. There must be a hired professional humorist, or a social lion, or some other imported entertainer, because people have no resources within themselves. When they have spoken of the weather, and passed the latest or earliest joke about Ford cars, and exchanged a little old-time banter, there is nothing left to talk about.

"Two Poor Campers" Is Right!

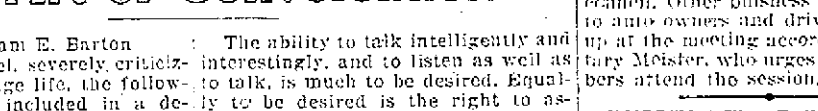

"One time last summer while I was in camp," Mazie was telling her chums "we tried the camp band stunt—ever hear about it? No? Well, I'll tell you.

"Someone who had been chosen leader announced while we were sitting around the fire after supper, that a camp band was to be organized. He gave each person the name of some band instrument which he was to imitate. Then he went around to each camper and whispered something. He told all but two of the bunch to keep quiet when the signal was given to play. It so happened that the two who weren't given this order were to play the slide trombone and the cornet.

"Well, the name of the song was announced. The leader slowly raised his arms for the signal. When it came the whole camp remained quiet except for the awful screeching and roaring of these two poor campers.

"Laugh! Girls, the whole camp simply roared!"

PLAN OF VOCATIONAL TRAINING OUTLINED BY EDUCATION BOARD

Would Organize Trade Schools With Reference to Industry of the District

MADISON, Wis.—Upbuilding of vocational education in Wisconsin through localized departments organized with reference to the manufacturing industry of the district, is recommended by the state board of education in a comprehensive program issued today.

Duplicated training with overlapping of courses, such as results from the present system of technical training in vocational schools, would be eliminated under the proposed plan, the report states. Each school would specialize its instruction according to the industrial interests of the locality, building up schools for each occupation in the section where the facilities for training are available.

"Would it not be wise, and for the best interests of the state industrially, and for the best interests of the workers in these great industries," the report says, "to establish special technical schools as type schools and to serve not only the local community, but the whole state, the whole industry, wherever located in the state."

"Unquestionably such a group of technical and trade schools, organized on a basis broad enough to offer complete training in the industry from both the production and the management standpoints, operated in close correlation with the actual industry, preferably on a co-operative plan of alternate weeks in shop and school, whereby the students would be able to support themselves while learning the industry would be of permanent value and would demonstrate the wisdom of special state aid for their establishment and maintenance as departments of the regular vocational schools."

The basis of the recommendation of these technical departments is found in the localization of industries in special sections of the state, according to the report. Suggestion is made that a building trades school be organized at Madison, and a technical school for paper making at Appleton. Provision is made for advisory boards of industrial education to work with the regular boards, and keep effective co-operation between the employers and employees.

The revival meetings that have been held nightly at the Scandinavian Baptist church will continue tonight, Friday and Saturday. WISCONSIN MAY BE FIRST STATE TO ERECT HOSPITAL FOR SHELL-SHOCKED YANKS

MADISON, Wis.—The first step in providing adequate hospital facilities for Wisconsin's shell shocked soldiers was taken Thursday morning when the joint finance committee reported out the Huber bill amended for passage. As soon as the legislature acts on the proposal, quarters will be built on Governor's Island at Madison.

MADISON, Wis.—Wisconsin may be the first state in the Union to erect a hospital for the care of shell-shocked soldiers. The substitute to the Huber bill was reported in the senate on Thursday. The original Huber bill asks an appropriation of $700,000 for the erection of hospital buildings. The substitute measure which was reported by the joint finance committee provides for the expenditure of approximately $75,000 out of the general fund.

Governor Haine has received a letter from the treasury department of Washington asking the state to immediately furnish hospital facilities for shell shocked soldiers. The federal government is to pay the state for the expense and care of these soldiers. The communication with the executive office and the federal government points out that President Harding be-

GAME SITUATION TO BE DISCUSSED AT A MEETING TONIGHT

The La Crosse Conservation club will meet tonight in the courthouse to discuss the game warden situation in the state, and especially the local situation. Because of the vetoing of the $20,000 appropriation for fish and game conservation work in the state by the governor it has been necessary to cut down the force of wardens. The local club will talk over plans for keeping a guard on game in this section, regardless of the depleted condition of the state department's funds. The public is invited to attend the meeting which will be held in County Judge Bradley's courtroom, beginning at 8 p. m.

The announcement that the monster production of the recent revival of Gilbert and Sullivan's comic opera "The Mikado" had been secured for the La Crosse Theater for two nights Sunday and Monday April 24-25th, with a special bargain matinee Sunday afternoon is an interesting topic among local music lovers. It dispels the belief that to hear a really worthwhile musical production one must go to a larger city. The advance sale will open at the box office of the theater Friday morning at 10:00 a. m.

Ralph Dunbar, The Chicago theatrical man who is reviving "Carmen" and "Robin Hood" as well as "The Mikado," concluded that if the millions in the smaller cities were given a square deal in the production of real comic opera a relationship of confidence would result, which would make possible the bringing to those cities of productions fully equal to the best offered anywhere. To test his judgment he invested $200,000 in the three productions and already fully five hundred cities have enjoyed real comic opera and Mr. Dunbar has been compelled to open additional, bank books to foot up his earnings.

ARREST PRIEST FOR SAYING PRAYER FOR EX-EMPEROR

KOSSICE, Czechoslovakia.—A Catholic priest named Kulon, presiding over a parish in a nearby village, has been arrested because, it is alleged, he recited a prayer for former King Charles during high mass last Sunday. The priest is said to have told the populace that he read the prayer through absent-mindedness, as he was using an old breviary which dated back to monarchical days.

To free your skin from blemishes —the right way

ASK a skin specialist why it is that your skin is continually breaking out with disfiguring little blemishes. He will almost certainly tell you that this condition comes from an outside infection.

Authorities on the skin now say that skin blemishes are generally caused by bacteria and parasites which are carried into the pores from outside, through dust and soot in the air. By the following simple treatment, you can gradually but thoroughly free your skin from blemishes:

EACH night just before retiring, wash your face with Woodbury's Facial Soap and warm water, finishing with a dash of cold water, and dry carefully.

Now dip the tips of your fingers in warm water and rub them on the cake of Woodbury's until they are covered with a heavy, creamlike lather.

Cover each blemish with a thick coat of this and leave it on for ten minutes.

Rinse your face thoroughly, first with clear hot water, then with cold.

Supplement this treatment with the regular use of Woodbury's Facial Soap in your daily toilet, to keep the new skin which is constantly forming free from blemishes.

Get a cake of Woodbury's today, at any drug store or toilet goods counter. A 25-cent cake will last for a month or six weeks of this treatment, and for general cleansing use. The Andrew Jergens Co., Cincinnati, New York and Perth, Ontario.

CREDITORS RECOVER FUNDS OF DEFUNCT BANK IN CHICAGO

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—Recovery of a million and a quarter dollars, the capital and surplus of the defunct Chicago and North Western bank, from the bank's former board of directors, including the "non-active" directors, was provided Thursday when the supreme court handed down a decision in the suit by the Chicago Title & Trust company.

Charles B. Munday, who was vice president of the bank, and who is now serving a term in the penitentiary for his part in the bank's failure, heads the active directors who are held. They include William Lorber, Thomas McDonald, Charles L. Ward, and Charles G. Fox.

DAHL TAXATION BILL MADE SPECIAL ORDER FOR NEXT THURSDAY

Administration Forces to Make Strong Fight for Passage of Measure

PROVIDES FOR REPEAL OF PERSONAL PROPERTY OFFSET

Also Revises Income Tax Rates;
Proposes Bank Earnings Tax

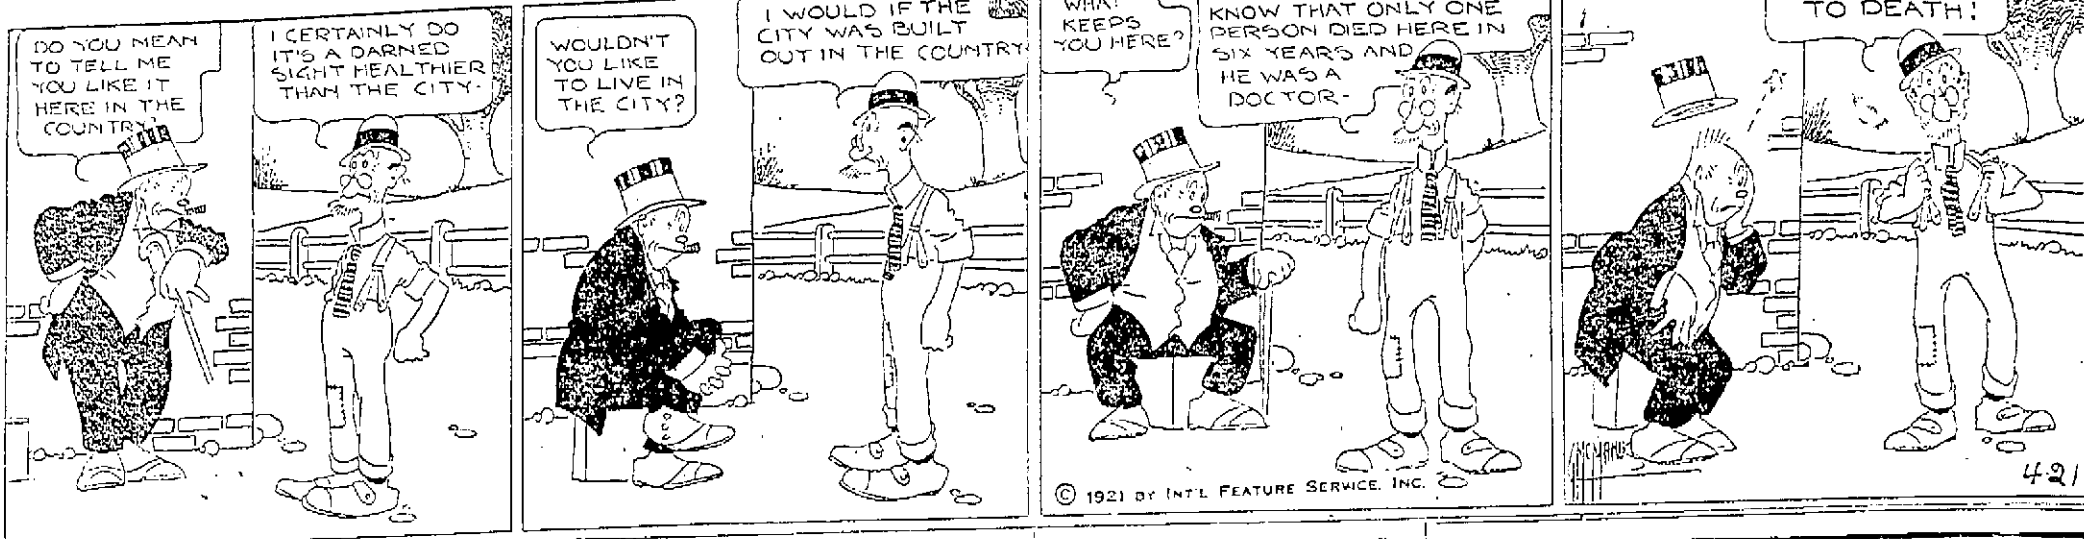

MADISON, Wis.—The Wisconsin assembly will be in session on the big taxation measure of the house next Thursday, when the Dahl bill comes up for consideration. This bill has been made a special order for 10 o'clock Thursday, April 25. The measure is the most comprehensive tax bill which has been introduced at this session. It was favorably recommended by the committee on taxation of the house but a fight will be made to secure its passage. This bill provides:

1. For repeal of personal property offset.
2. The same exemptions under state income tax law as under federal income tax law.
3. Taxation of bank earnings.
4. Revision of the present income tax rates.

Administration leaders are strongly back of the Dahl bill and a record taxation fight will be made on this measure. Dahl claims that his bill is introduced to cover first plank in the republican platform which declares for revision of income tax rates in this state. At the present time dividends of banks are not subject to income tax. The Dahl bill provides for their taxation. This measure also incorporates many of the provisions of tax measures which have been before the legislature, including the repeal of the so-called personal property offset. Most of the provisions of the Dahl bill have been recommended by the state tax commission.

Within ten days the Matheson dry bill will be on its way to the governor, it having been engrossed in the senate on Wednesday by a vote of 22-11. The bill will probably be engrossed in by the senate on Friday and the present plan is to message the measure immediately back to the senate. The one amendment which was attached was originally rejected in the house but it has since been approved by the Wisconsin Anti-Saloon League. Otherwise the Matheson bill stands just as it came from the committee of the house.

The senate by unanimous vote struck from the Matheson dry enforcement bill that provision of the measure which would give officers the right to carry people in jail who refused to answer their questions. After the bill has been considered in by the senate on Friday or Saturday the measure will come back to the assembly for concurrence in the Roche interdictorial amendment. It will then go to the governor.

Close friends of Governor Blaine let it be known on Thursday that the executive will sign the bill. This was forecast by the speech of Senator Huber in the house on Wednesday when he declared that the Wisconsin Anti-

Saloon League would be held responsible for the effectiveness of the bill as enforcement plan. From now on the liquor and enforcement legislation will find no obstacle in the legislature, and the deck will be cleared of this measure within ten days.
